Friends of Slain "Suitor" Deny Wife's Story of Suspicious Husband.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 3 .-Relatives and friends of Edgar Bryan Pownall, who was killed here Wednesday morning by Mrs. Kate Uhl, wife of Mervin Uhl, deny that the stabing was brought about because ownall had forced attentions upon the young woman and then refused to admit this to her husband.

Father Denies Story.

That was the story told by Mrs. Uhl immediately after she was arrested. She said that Pownall, who lived in the apartment above those occupied by her, visited her apart-ment Tuesday and attempted to as-sault her. She said her husband sud-denly returned home and that Pow-nall fied when he saw Uhl. She said hall ned when he saw Uni. She said ber husband ordered her to leave the house. She admitted to the police she stabbed Pownall after he refused to go to her husband and tell him that he had forced his attentions on her. Thomas P. Pownall, father of the dead man, and Mrs. William E. Pownall, sister-in-law to the father, de-nied that Pownall was in the apartment of Mrs. Uhl the night before the killing. They said Pownall and Uhl attended a dance together that evening, and that Pownall, who returned home just before Uhl, told them Uhl had taken a girl home from the dance. Thy said Pownall was mounting the steps leading to the second-floor admitted, however, that they heard thi quarreling with his wife and that they heard him accuse her of having entertained Pownall. Invited to Apartment.

The father of the dead man said that shortly before his son was stabbed

Mrs. Uhl invited the young man to come to her apartment. Because of what he heard the night before, he paid he pleaded with him not to go to the Uhl apartment. He said he told Mrs. Uhl to come to the Pownall apartment and talk there to his son, but that she refused to do so. "Bryan, in response to the plead ings of Mrs. Uhl, started to her apartment," said Mr. Pownall. "She was not apparently angry when she asked him to visit her. She was smiling and used a coaxing tone. I tried to hear their conversation, but could not. Almost immediately Bryan left her oms, and while running past me on the stairway told me Mrs. Uhl had stabbed him. Hardly two minutes elapsed from the time he left our spartment before he returned stabbed.

The statement of Mr. Pownall was corroborated by Mrs. William E. Powmall. She also said she pleaded with Bryan not to go to the Uhl apartment when Mrs. Uhl called him. She said, however, that Mrs. Uhl was "in love with Bryan" and that "she killed him because he refused to elope with her." Bryan was the dearest boy on the face of the earth, but that her love for him did her no good because she was married. She was a good woman, a good wife, and a good housekeeper. Until about two weeks ago she worshiped the ground her husband walked on, despite the fact that he spent very ittle of his time at home. But lately change came over her. A few nights before the killing Uhl remained away from home all night. The next night he put his wife out of the house and locked the door because she refused to put his socks on him. I let her Hubby Says Legacy Turned Little Flier Center of Interest at Wife's Head and She Drove Him Away.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 .- Henry Lewis Slade was granted a separation yesterday at White Plains by Justice Platt. Court records generally show that the husband abandons his wife, Slade's charge of abandonment is the story of a husband who says his wife "Only a few days before the kill-drove him out of her home after she ing," she said, "Mrs. Uhl told me that inherited $1,000,000 from her father. inherited $1,000,000 from her father. cumstances for several years until she finally told me to get out of the house. She repeated this many times and I finally went. This was in August, 1918.' According to the evidence filed with the judgment, Mr. Slade said his wife would not let him return home. He said he was able to take away only a few of his effects in an automobile. When he tried to get his clothes he said his wife wrote:

Have War Records From the point of service, Lord Adeladie is the most grizzled veteran of the recent war. Arriving in France with the first contingent of tanks he served with that rough-and-tumble corps through every offensive that they survived.

President Wilson, another blue

omer, balances himself upon his remaining leg with the same assurance that marked his heroic work at Chateau Thierry when, with all other means of communication cut off, he 'got through" with an important message, despite the fact that a Hun shot-gunner" had torn off his leg. Further evidence of the cruel efficiency of the German pigeon snipers is manifest in "The Mocker," a red nomer with but one eye. This pigeon ame back to the loft one day literally riddled with pellets from a Gernan shotgun. The loft sergeant tarted to kill it, so bad was its contition, but decided to administer reasment. The care given the bird was successful, and not long after he vas again in active service. While carrying a message over the strugling lines in the Meuse-Argonne offensive he was again the victim of dun gunshot, which resulted in the oss of his left eye.

Birthplace Mystery.

Last but not least is an unnamed ittle silver-sheened bird whose pert and attractive appearance makes one orget that he is a German, Perhaps t shouldn't be "held against him," out the ever present truth remains that he's a Hun at heart.

Of course his birthplace is a mysery. What lies back in his undoubtedly dark past will never be known. He flew into the army loft at Sols-ons one day and his mute appeal for food and shelter was answered. The home loft had no doubt been wrecked by allied gun fire so he flew o the benevolent Americans who have given him a home ever since. A crown on the indentification band around his leg indicates that he was member of the imperial general staff loft—the staff that was.

KAISER AND CROWN FARMERS SEE LOOT PRINCE DISCUSS BY RAILS DIRECTORS EXTRADITION

National Council Urges Law to Prevent Interlocking Boards Under Private Ownership.

A flat demand will be made on Congress by the Farmers' National-Council for legislation "to prevent the looting of the public through inter-locking directorates of industrial, financial, and transportation companies before the railroads are returned to private ownership.

"Railroad directors under private ownership of the roads earn their stockholders' bread through the roads' revenues," says George P. Hampton, managing director of the council, "but they get their cake by being directors and stockholders of industrial and financial companies with which directors deal and from which they buy supplies for their roads.
"The old Wall Street crowd wants the railroads returned so they can get back to the old system of buying every year hundreds of millions of dollars of goods for themselves, from themselves, at prices satisfactory to themelves as seller. Under Govern-ment control this was cut out."

The council declares that the industrial corporations in which railroad directors are interested are makng enormous profits and the return of the roads will help them keep up their profits. In 1917, the income of ed an inquest over the body of Philip Ganley, twenty-three years old, of Mt. the Baldwin Locomotive Works was more than double that of the average Rainier, Md., who was shot and killed net income for the three pre-war est Parsons, a drug clerk at Tyree's Drug Store, Fifteenth and H streets years.
